CHEF ANGEL SOTO RETURNS TO TURQUOISE ROOM

Winslow, Arizona - Chef Angel Soto has returned to Winslow as Executive Chef and Partner of the Turquoise Room restaurant. He continues the Turquoise Room tradition of sourcing the highest quality ingredients while paying homage to Navajo and Hopi cuisine, but with a contemporary flair and exciting new menu items. Together with Chef de Cuisine Jesus Nuñez and Sous Chef Matt Alonzo, they prepare artful and delicious dishes in a setting steeped in architectural history.

Chicago-born Chef Soto's food career began in his father's bakery in Puerto Rico, where he baked his favorite pastry, quesitos. After moving back to the states, Soto began his career in luxury and fine dining restaurants, working his way up the kitchen hierarchy. Mid-career, a mentor suggested he take his skills to the next level by going to culinary school. In 2015, he graduated Le Cordon Bleu College of Culinary Arts in Scottsdale Arizona with high honors and was immediately recruited by Turquoise Room founder John Sharpe. After Chef Sharpe retired, Chef Soto went on to work at a variety of fine dining restaurants across the country, including the Arizona Biltmore, before returning to Winslow.

We are thrilled to have him back in Winslow and at the helm of Turquoise Room restaurant, presenting contemporary dishes with distinctive style—like his exquisite Potato-Wrapped Halibut, or Heritage Chicken Mole. Guests have been delighted to see his elevated new offerings and photo-worthy presentations.
